Introduction

During the recent events in Yemen, someone returned from 'Ataq with the news that "people said that things had been taken out of the museum". We then had vague reports about damages at the museums in Aden, Mukalla and Seiyun, as well as at the Al-Ahqaf Library in Tarim. The General Organization of Antiquities, Manuscripts and Museums (GOAMM) sent a mission to assess the state of the museum in Aden on 14 July. But a general investigation was not possible until 28 July 1994.

Dr. Ahmed Bataya, General Director of Antiquities of the GOAMM, was delegated to lead the mission, aided by Musleh Ali Ahmed of the GOAMM, and David Warburton, Resident Director of the American Institute for Yemeni Studies came as scientific advisor. Using a car provided by the American Institute for Yemeni Studies, the delegates were able to visit the relevant GOAMM institutions in the southern and eastern governorates, from 29 July to 8 August. In co-operation with the local authorities, we were able to compile a preliminary report on the extent of the damages.

Summary

We were not able to establish a precise account of exactly what was missing in each and every museum, but in general it can be confirmed that of the thirteen (13) facilities we investigated, at least ten (10) had suffered from thefts or vandalism or both. The damage was most complete in Lahej/Hawta where the entire museum was emptied, but the situation in Habilayn was not much better, as the broken showcases remain to be disposed of. Vandalism and thefts also occurred in Dali' and Mukalla. In Aden, 'Ataq, Bayhan, and Zinjibar serious thefts considerably diminished the value of the collections of antiquities. At least two of the three Museums of the Martyrs in Aden were vandalized, but we were unable to establish whether the third was also vandalized or not. The museum in Seiyun and the library in Tarim were virtually untouched.

Caveat

All of the information offered here is provisional, and the dates of theft are uncertain.

Conclusions

The museums require considerable assistance. Many objects have been stolen, and damages inflicted. It will be necessary to trace the objects, rebuild showcases and exhibitions. Further investigative and cataloguing efforts are foreseen.

It is intended to prepare a comprehensive report soon, providing background to the lists of objects, which have been identified as stolen, and we intend to add additional items as we are able to complete the work, but this preliminary report provides some idea of the losses suffered. Additional objects were stolen from the Dāli' Museum, but the disorganized state of the records prevented a list from being made quickly. Many of the objects from the Museum in Mukalla were not properly catalogued, so that the list is not very helpful, and fails to account for numerous objects.

Remarks

One of the serious problems that becomes clear from this situation is that the existing security systems available for the protection of artifacts in the museums are completely inadequate. It was hitherto possible to guarantee that the objects were undisturbed, but the general security situation has deteriorated.

It is doubtless important to have local museums spread around the country, but it is a mistake to have valuable artifacts deposited in museums with inadequate security arrangements, when the museums fail to attract the tourists who would make the museums worthwhile. It is either necessary to alter the touristic infrastructure of the country so that visitors actually visit the museum (and pay entrance fees, which benefit the museum), or to place casts of the objects in the provincial museums, and make arrangements for the security of the originals.
